From The Principal's Desk

A bacterium in a drinking glass divides in two at 11 am.

One minute later the two new bacteria have fully grown and divide in two. There are now four bacteria. The bacteria continue growing and doubling in number every minute.

At 12pm, the glass is completely full to the brim with bacteria. At precisely what time was the glass exactly half full with bacteria?

In May this year, our Year 3 and 5 children sat the NAPLAN test. Our 5s did all this testing online while our 3s also did all but the writing task, online. The above question was not on the NAPLAN numeracy test but I am sure it had your brain 'ticking over' as were our children's back in May.

This week, our Years 3 and 5 children will bring home their results from these NAPLAN tests. These tests were held in every Australian Primary School and your child's results are compared to the national average in the areas of Numeracy (Mathematics) and Literacy (English).

There is a brief summary on the front of the result sheet explaining how to read your child's results. If you however have any concerns about this, please do not hesitate to contact your child's teacher, Mrs Lisa List or myself.

The following link also provides an excellent insight into reading your child's results:

<http://www.nap.edu.au/docs/default-source/default-document-library/naplan-2019-student-report-information-for-parents-brochure.pdf>

These results will be used by our teachers this year and next to assist our children in areas of need and also to celebrate their successes. The national test results represent a snapshot of each child's achievement at a particular point in time.

They are but one form of assessment used to measure students' development and should be considered in relation to other aspects of our school's assessment.

Sacred Heart will continue to monitor the results of these tests and use this information to plan for improvement in our children's learning.

Further information about the National Assessment Program Literacy and Numeracy (NAPLAN) is available on the following website: www.nap.edu.au

Mrs Lisa List in her role as curriculum coordinator at Sacred Heart and each classroom teacher have viewed the test results. Once again if you have any questions, please contact our school.

There is always much publicity about the NAPLAN data release, as there is every year, but little recognition of the hard work of those who educate our children.

I would like to thank the teachers at Sacred Heart and affirm their continuing hard work and commitment as educators.

While NAPLAN is one measure of students' achievements and the basic skills it tests are very important, I know that the education received by children in our school is rich and holistic, providing them with the opportunities to hopefully reach their full potential and put them in good stead for their future development.

All the best

Solution: The glass was half full at exactly 11.59am.

APRE

Every so often in life we have a light bulb moment. This for me was when I was a 3rd year teaching in Emerald. We had a professional development day and the guest speaker was a well known psychologist. Every teacher in town from both State and Catholic was at the seminar. The feeling and thoughts amongst the participants was not great. One being 'How are we supposed to get any extra knowledge from someone who does not have any children and has never taught a day in his life?'

I will never forget the first words that this man said. He asked us to think of a child in our class with whom we had some problems. My teacher assistant and I looked at each other, rolled our eyes and knew straight away who it was. A 5 year old boy who constantly told us that he hated us and that he wanted to run my assistant over with a steam roller. He then asked us if we liked him and that's when my lightbulb turned on. I never thought that I would ever say this but I did not like him. Until that moment, I did not realise and this made me feel sick.

The psychologist then told us that if we learnt nothing else that day, to go back and cover that child with kindness. We figured that we had nothing to lose. You see we knew that this little boy would be expelled by the time he was in Year 5. He was mean, angry and no one wanted to play with him. We went back to school the next day and tailed this little boy, constantly praising him for everything that he did before he could do anything wrong.

After two weeks, we saw a real change in him. It came to our attention that this little boy had shifted not only house but also towns and his parents were back on their old property packing it up. He thought that we were taking him off his parents and that he wasn't going to see his mother again. He went on to being the most gorgeous, well mannered boy in our school. He had many friends and later went on to become school captain.

My greatest concern was how my attitude could have had such a negative impact on this little boy. This psychologist, who knew nothing, taught me one of the greatest lessons in my teaching career. Everyone is special and everyone has someone who loves them.

Dear God,

Let us take time to remember that everyone needs to be loved and that we all need someone to love us. May we continue to make an effort with those who need it the most. Amen.

Enjoy your weekend.

Stories

On the weekend, I went to my Aunty's and Uncle's house for lunch and had a little play on the top of Mount Jim Crow. We had dinner up there and then we all came down from Mount Jim Crow. Then we looked at a farm nearby. Finally, we went to our house and our Pops opened their presents. Then they had a cake and then our cousins went home. We went to bed. By Aria Richards Year 1

An extract from 'The Queen and Her Magic Shoes' by Isabella Todman Year 2

In a land far far away, there lived a beautiful queen and her name was Fiona. She had long, red hair, a glittery dress and a golden crown. But Queen Fiona was no ordinary queen because she had magical shoes. When she had her shoes on, she could wish for anything.

She lived in a beautiful white castle that had the comfiest bed to lay in. But, in a far away dark castle lived an evil king who was very mean. His castle was full of toads. He was so evil, he had an evil dragon sidekick named Evilistrater.

One day, the evil king kidnapped the queen.....

Once upon a time, the shoemaker and his wife were very poor. They only had one piece of leather so the shoe maker made the last pair of shoes. Then they were ready overnight and a gentleman came over and he paid for them. They got rich off the elves so they made then a gift for their work. By Koby Neubecker. Year 1 A retell of the Elves and the Shoemaker

Pizza Day

As you are most probably aware, one of our Year 4 children, Cooper Sweeney has been selected to represent Queensland at the National Athletics Championships in Darwin later this month.

To support Cooper with his costs in attending this event, we are having a pizza day at school next Tuesday 10th September.

If you wish, you can order slices of pizza for $2 each with $1 going to support Cooper, by completing the form below and returning it to our child's teacher with money by this Friday 6th September.

The pizzas will be served at first break on Tuesday after play.

Thank you for your anticipated support.

Important Traffic Concern

We appear to be having in the afternoons, traffic congestion at the Bottlebrush Drive roundabout.

Several complaints have been made to our local police by both local residents and school families.

As a result, our police will be commencing patrols of this area commencing next week. I ask that families do not queue in this area when doing the afternoon pick up. It is a stop, pick up and go area.

Lost Property: School Jumpers

We have a vast collection of school jumpers in our lost property box in our front office. Many of these are new.

If you are missing a school jumper I ask that you check at our office. All jumpers left on the last day of the term will be taken to St Vincent De Paul. Thank you.
